Cecil Group awarded facilities master plan

WILMINGTON - Based on recommendation from the Facilities Master Plan Committee, Town Manager Jeffrey Hull has awarded a contract for $142,750 to urban design, planning and architecture consultants, The Cecil Group.

The Group, which has also been awarded a contract for Tewksbury's Town Visioning Project, will be working with the Town and the Committee to develop a municipal facilities master plan.

The Cecil Group is comprised of architects, urban designers, planners, landscape architects and graphic designers. Their clientele includes a mix of public, private and institutional sector clients, which the firm helps to realize the potential of their towns, cities, developments, buildings, institutions, parks and open space.

The Group's work includes urban design, land planning, community planning, landscape architecture, sustainability planning, and institutional planning, including expertise in helping institutions, towns and cities formulate and navigate change that benefits each party's interests.

Hull announced the plan and schedule for meetings at the December 14, 2015 Board of Selectmen meeting. Public Buildings Superintendent George Hooper was present at the meeting.

"George Hooper has certainly been a real important contact because he has a lot of records with regard to buildings," said Hull.

For Wilmington, the plan encompasses replacement, rehabilitation and decommissioning of town facilities, with an eye toward facilitating a more efficient and convenient municipality for residents through potential realignment of departments within specific municipal buildings.

The kick-off meeting for the project was held on Thursday, December 10, 2015. Principal of The Cecil Group, Steve Cecil presented the Group's scope of services and time lines for completion of work.

Development of a final plan is expected to take approximately 12 months. The Committee will hold meetings on the second Tuesday of every month starting in February. All meetings are open to the Public.

The consultant will work primarily to gather information about the Town's build-

Shady Lane Drive residents Brenda and Ralph Gibbons collected over 350 non-perishable food items from friends and neighbors plus a little cash money, too. The Donation Box was out in front of their holiday menagerie of lights and was collected by the Food Bank's own Bob DiPalma and Kevin Bleier. Wilmington residents are encouraged to take things into their own hands around the holiday season and help those in the community who may be struggling through the holidays. The Food Bank is happy to assist in the pickup of all donations and is grateful to all who participate.

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Police Department was honored twice during the annual Community Traffic Safety

Awards, sponsored by AAA Northeast at the Burlington Marriott.

For their traffic and safety efforts throughout the year, the department accepted the AAA Silver Award, highlighting their achievements in combating dangerous driving behaviors.

The Silver Award also recognizes the department's initiatives in educational and safety programs. "Such as our child seat checks and school bus safety training, which Safety Officer Brian Moon handles district-wide," Lt. Joseph Desmond told the Crier. "It's very important. We've had buses break down before and minor accidents. Fortunately we haven't had anything serious, but it helps to be prepared."

Desmond adds that every Wednesday, from 10am to

Wilmington resident rallies to end stigma of addiction

Wilmington showed overwhelming town-wide support for a holiday drive benefiting recovering addicts and their families.

Organized by local resident Kendal Vaughan in cooperation with the Wilmington Substance Abuse Prevention Task Force (a coalition of Wilmington Public Schools), the Wilmington Police Department and the Wilmington Board of Health, the event provided much-needed donations to addiction treatment facilities.

Vaughan, 32, was inspired by the film "If Only" shown in October at St. Thomas Church. The film (shot throughout Tewksbury, including local students) and following panel discussion addressed Opiate addiction as a public health issue.

After reaching out to Superintendent of Schools, Mary DeLai, and Director of Public Health, Shelly Newhouse, Vaughan embarked on Wilmington's largest effort to reduce the stigma around addiction and treatment.

She created a Facebook page, twitter account, GoFundMe page and website to raise awareness. Donation boxes could be located town-wide - Wilmington schools, town hall, St. Elizabeth's Church and RE/Max Encore - to collect toiletries, clothing, toys, crafting supplies and other basics. "As mundane as those things may sound to you and me, they are wonderful to someone else Christmas morning."

Volunteers from Wilmington schools, businesses, churches and the police and health departments converged at the West Intermediate School Cafeteria to help with sorting, wrapping and delivery of donations. Girl Scout Troop #66771 made hand-made cards and packaged more than 100 gift bags.

"It was a beautiful balance between what people needed and wanted," said Aine Greaney Ellrott, Director of Communications for Lahey Health Behavioral Services.

Tax rate to drop Jan 1

Governor Charlie Baker and Lieutenant Governor Karyn Polito announced today that the final economic trigger was met in order to lower the state's income tax from 5.15% to 5.10%. The income tax cut for all Massachusetts residents will become effective January 1, 2016.

The Fiscal Year 2016

Budget accounted for $74 million associated with the tax cut to 5.10 percent and $152 million in the Fiscal Year 2017. The current year's revenue estimate already reflects the revenue impact from this rate decline.

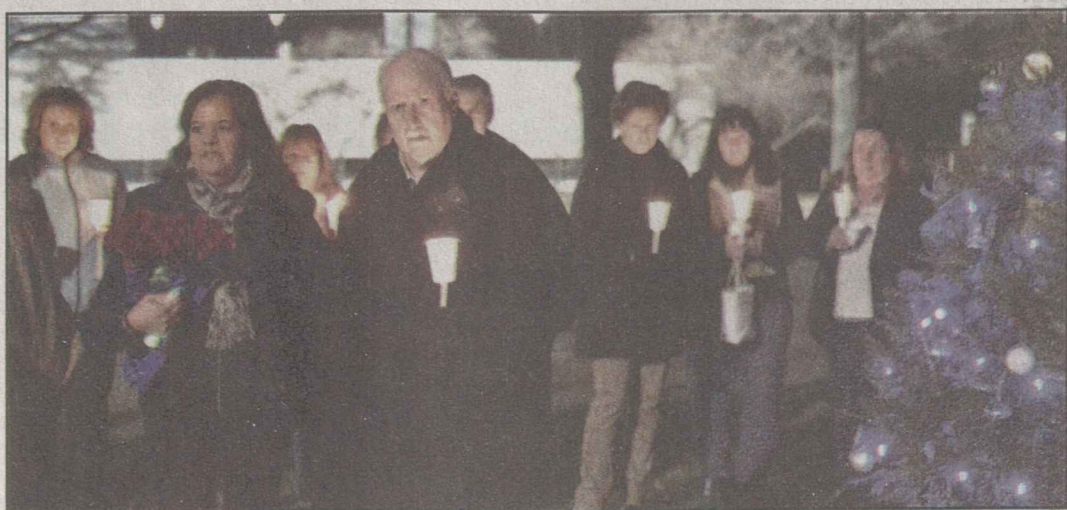

A ballot initiative passed in 2000 called for the state's

TO MARK THE FIVE YEARS SINCE HIS HEROIC STAND AGAINST AN ARMED ROBBERY SUSPECT, a memorial service was held on Washington Street in East Woburn between the Kohl's Department Store and the post office now dedicated in his memory for the late John "Jack" Maguire. Maguire, a resident of Wilmington, was killed in an exchange of gun fire the day after Christmas five years ago bringing down the armed robber before he was able to flee into abutting neighborhoods. A host of area police, family and friends attended the memorial (above) including Magurie's wife, Desiree (below, left) and Retired Woburn Police Chief Phil Mahoney (right) as they address the assembled crowd at the 5th year memorial for "Jack."

Artfully displayed on a whimsical coat rack, the town Veterans Service Office has amassed a set of military artifacts and accessories that cover a broad range of time and functions. From canteens to hats, there is a sample of military history hanging there for all visitors to enjoy.

Now serving as the town Veterans Service Office, the West School is the best-preserved in its original state of Wilmington's 1-room schoolhouses. This wood building was probably built in the 1860s or 1870s and placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1990. It is appropriate that it houses a collection of military history artifacts and memorabilia as well as tribute displays.

Town's good decision has proven a great one

By SHERYL WALSH
Town Crier Correspondent
Sheryl@YourTownCrier.com

WILMINGTON - When the Town decided to convert the vacant West School on Shawsheen Avenue to the new Veterans' Services Office, it was a good idea. The VSO needed the room, and the town property was not fulfilling any tangible purpose. Now the historically significant 1-room schoolhouse provides more than just town office space. It has evolved into an unofficial museum of military history and, more importantly, a community center for town veterans.

"We have things here from the Civil War to today," Veterans Agent Lou Cimaglia explains as he points to a unique display of military artifacts. There's also a significant collection of military coins there. The coins are gifts from various armed forces units that have been connected to Wilmington veterans. Many have been awarded to Cimaglia in appreciation for his service as the town agent.

The office also houses two more solemn tributes. The most visible is the Wall of Remembrance. On that wall, there are pictures of every Massachusetts veteran who has died since 9/11. Right below their pictures is the ceremonial POW-MIA table. It is a tribute to show those veterans they are not forgotten. That familiar military table setting is a tradition from formal military events that is eloquently captured and displayed at the West School.

While this history is certainly important, the school house is more significant in its new role as a gathering place. "We've tried to make this a comfortable environment where everyone is welcomed," Cimaglia reports. "Where it is inviting." They even have computer terminals there where veterans can research and apply for benefits and jobs.

Veterans will occasionally meet at the schoolhouse to share common concerns and answers to their various situations. On any given day between five and thirty-five people visit that building according to Joe Downs of the VSO. "We don't have too many slow days," he says. "Yesterday we had five scheduled appointments, but there were countless walk-ins."

So while the occupants have changed from children to adults, the approximately 150-year old schoolhouse still provides a service and functions as a nurturing place to the Wilmington community. So it turns out, the VSO move from a tiny room in town hall into the much bigger building was really a great idea.

Lt. Daniel Murray held a large role in combating dangerous driving behaviors for which he received the "Traffic Safety Hero of the Year" award.

Murray coordinated several multi-jurisdictional traffic saturation patrols, working closely with the Tewksbury, Reading, Burlington, Woburn and Massachusetts State Police departments.

During saturation patrols, the group's primary objective is to look for traffic offenses.

"Their one function is to look for as many as they can," said Desmond. "It runs the gamut from speeding to stop sign violations, expired inspection stickers or texting and driving."

Location-specific patrols occur before OUI check points - areas where motorists are randomly stopped, given information on drunk driving, and if anything else is detected, they are asked to pull over and given a sobriety test.

"In Massachusetts, it is called OUI (Operating Under the Influence) where some states refer to it as DUI (Driving Under the Influence). We view it as a stronger law," said Desmond.

Since 2012, Lieutenant Murray has coordinated 11 traffic saturation patrols, aimed to combat drunk driving and increase motorist safety by enforcing speeding laws, texting violations and enforce seatbelt usage. As a result, there were 71 arrests for OUI, 64 arrests for other criminal violations and existing warrants, 15 criminal summonses and 1,352 civil motor vehicle citations.

"It's quite an accomplishment," said Desmond. "The logistics behind getting other towns involved is a lot of work."

Six of Murray's saturation patrols ran in conjunction with Massachusetts State Police sobriety checkpoints in both Wilmington & Tewksbury, sending a clear message that driving under the influence of drugs and alcohol will not be tolerated.

"One of our most important functions is safety of the motoring public," said Desmond. "Our department does a fantastic job and I look forward to keeping up the good work in 2016."

NEW MORTGAGE RULES

Borrowing to buy a home should now be a little less complicated, thanks to new mortgage rules in effect since October 3. Within three days of applying, borrowers must get an initial Loan Estimate that outlines the interest rate and monthly payment. If they apply to several lenders, all the offers will be similarly displayed, so they should be easy to compare.

One major change is that a Closing Disclosure must be provided at least three business days before closing; it shows the loan amount and interest rate, estimated taxes, and how much cash will be required at closing. If the borrower makes changes at the last minute—perhaps moving from a fixed to an adjustable-rate loan—the closing can be delayed another three days.

These changes were required by the Dodd-Frank financial reform law; it directed the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau to simplify the older systems.

Military members often carry coins that identify them as members of a particular unit. The coin usually shows that unit's emblem and motto. Although a tradition that dates back to WWI (and some claim to ancient times), its popularity has come and gone over the years. Currently in practice, a commander or other representative of a unit's leadership will often gift a coin to someone outside the unit in recognition of their hard work and excellence.

MAPC awarded federal grant to study natural gas leaks in Greater Boston

The Metropolitan Area Planning Council (MAPC) is pleased to announce that it has received a federal grant to study natural gas leaks in the region and assess the approaches municipalities can take to accelerate improvements to the system.

Massachusetts has one of the oldest natural gas distribution systems in the country. According to a recent report from the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities, leaks annually account for approximately 1 million metric tons of CO<sub>2</sub>e emissions, which is equivalent to the annual emissions from the energy use of over 91,000 homes. Gas distribution utilities have recently developed plans to replace leak-prone pipe fully within the next 20 to 25 years.

The grant from the U.S. Department of Transportation's Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration funds MAPC, in partnership with HEET (Home Energy Efficiency Team), to lead a one-year project to perform independent surveys of gas leaks and collect municipal street repair planning and utility collaboration practices from cities and towns in the MAPC region. Through analysis and dissemination of the results, the project will:

- Augment the understanding of the extent of leaks to educate communities and partners more comprehensively on risk mitigation
- Facilitate and expedite the efficient replacement of aging, leak-prone pipeline infrastructure by providing data to support best practices for municipal collaboration with utilities to repair leaks.

MAPC is one of 22 local government and pipeline safety groups to receive a grant through the U.S. Department of Transportation's Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration. As the regional planning agency for the 101 cities and towns of Greater Boston, MAPC promotes smart growth and regional collaboration. MAPC's Clean Energy division supports a diverse range of municipal and regional strategies to reduce greenhouse gas emissions. ## School Districts to Stock NARCAN

Wilmington and Tewksbury Schools Taking Action against Opioid-Induced Health Problems

By BRENDAN FOLEY
News Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

TEWKSBURY - With a plague of narcotic addiction still spreading throughout Massachusetts, local school districts have begun taking action.

In recent school committee sessions, both Wilmington and Tewksbury school administrations approved plans to begin stocking naloxone (also known as Narcan). School health professionals will undergo training with naloxone so they will be ready should the need arise.

According to the Center for Disease Control (CDC) 44 people in the United States die every day from prescription painkillers. The number of prescription painkillers dispensed in the United States has quadrupled since 1999, despite little to no change in the number of Americans who report pain symptoms. More than 16,000 people died from overdoses in 2013 alone.

The CDC website states that nearly two million Americans "aged 12 or older, either abused or were dependent on opioids in 2013."

Tewksbury school nurse Elaine Walsh informed the school committee on Wednesday that there were 1008 confirmed fatal opioid overdoses in Massachusetts in 2014.

The term "opioid" refers to drugs ranging from heroin, to prescription items like OxyContin, fentanyl, hydrocodone, codeine, and methadone.

Naloxone, described as "a medication used to reverse the effects of opioids especially in overdose" was patented in 1961. According to documents provided by school physician Donald Miller, MD, naloxone has been used by emergency responders and physicians since the 1970s to combat the effects of an overdose.

Because naloxone cannot be used to achieve a chemical high, there is little to no incentive for the medication to be stolen and misused.

"It's a simple little box of magic," Walsh said in her presentation. "It can stop the opioid overdose. You go from near respiratory arrest to being wide awake again. It's safe, effective, and it has no potential for abuse."

Walsh stated that 133 school districts are already stocking naloxone.

"We need to be in the cutting edge," Walsh stated. "We need to be stocking it."

Both Wilmington and Tewksbury school committees approved the plan to begin stocking naloxone.

"Effective at the start of the new year (January 4th), school health offices will stock doses of Narcan," said Wilmington Superintendent Mary DeLai. "They were previously trained in the administration of the drug."

"I think this is a wonderful thing for our schools," said Kristen Polimeno, chairperson of the Tewksbury school committee.

Brief review of events impacting our lives during 2015 as we look ahead

By PAUL ANDREWS

Every year at the this period of time between Christmas and New Years, I reflect a great deal on the year that is almost closing and find myself using the phrase "well we got through another one." Somehow often personal tragedies seem to impact on me more and more, as we see so much sadness around us with the loss of people who have held special places in our hearts but somehow we must carry on, which for many is impossible and at best is very hard.

Each newscast you watch it seems that you see serious accidents, fires, murders, child abductions with a sprinkling of good stories especially at this time of the year. Reflecting on thoughts for this year end column, I keep asking myself why people seem different during these weeks around the holiday. You have folks saying Merry Christmas and Happy New Year or another friendly greeting to all they meet, even total strangers. Work places turn into party time for many and a chance to exchange stories, that is not like other times of the year. There is really something special about these weeks which I really wish could carry over to the rest of the year.

I have concluded that part of this atmosphere is that folks are focused on the happiness of the season and not the hard news stories happening in our state and local areas that are negative. Many families seem to spend more time together and really have good conversations in real time and not carrying on "smart phone conversations" that are usually short with less meaning.

World events

We seem to see the wars around the world as becoming a huge concern to all citizens, as tragedies are taking place in the mid-east as cultural disputes and anger boil over to the threat or use of dangerous weapons and continued diplomacy without any real significant resolutions. Our recent moves to open communications with Cuba seemed to be a step in the right direction, while recent days have seen protesters becoming angry at the United States efforts. While Russian-American relationships are always "moment to moment," we seem to be in a rebuilding effort without any real confidence this will last.

Meanwhile national elections in the United States have truly divided America with many saying that we are seeing a new American attitude, as the polls reflect in the presidential debates and discussions on-going. As the years change this confusion and discussion will continue right up through both conventions and possibly longer. We see many using the current confusion to call for the elimination of the Democratic and Republican labels and moving to conservative and liberal parties as is the case is several other countries.

The racial battles in urban areas is expected to continue in the new year as law enforcement and minority populations attempt to develop a working relationship with each other, that is much easier to say than accomplish.

Education

The coming year in Town Crier land will see one of more analysis on testing as PARRC or MCAS 2.0 which will be the method used to evaluate our students as educators attempt to provide the education they were trained to accomplish as well as meeting the national and state testing demands. The recent Washington decision to give more power to the states is being hailed as a good move but this does not seem to impact Massachusetts, which has adopted just about all of the federal standards as Massachusetts procedures.

The Charter school battle will continue, as most educators point to the issue that "the playing field is not level" as Charters do not need to take all students, become selective and take funds away from the local public school budgets. The threat is out there that if the legislature does not increase the number of Charters, the matter will become a ballot question. As we head towards an unknown 2016, I will say that we shall see a continuation of our current problems, along with some added national and international security procedures implemented.

Thanks for your comments and feel free to e-mail me at andrews@massupt.org Happy New Year to All

Letters to the editor

Thank you

On behalf of the Briley family, we would like to say "Thank You" to the Tewksbury Police Department for all of your incredible support and outpouring of love that we witnessed during last week's procession honoring Everett Police Officer, Glen Briley.

A special thank you to Chief Sheehan, Deputy Chief Voto and all the officers of the Tewksbury Police Department, who did a spectacular job in coordinating the many Police Departments that came and participated in the services of Officer Glen Briley.

Glen was a devoted Police Officer, serving the citizens of Everett for the last 19 years. He was also a devoted Husband, Father, Son, Brother, Uncle and Friend.

Cement trouble ahead?

Dear Editor

After attending the Wilmington Appeals Board meeting on Nov. 18th, concerning the opening of a Cement plant on Eames Street, I must conclude Tresca Brothers "You are a wolf in sheep's clothing". During the official board meeting you appeared to conveniently have an answer for everything, yet not answering all the questions directed to you. With your past for your history, who is going to be accountable for your mistakes??? Oh, that's right the town had to pay for it. Also, throwing us a piece of cheese" $45,000 to help in costs with adjusting the corner of Eames and Woburn streets, so your huge company mixer trucks can make the right hand turn. Really, I sense this to be ridiculous. You will be greatly profiting from the opening of that site and the cost to redo that corner is much, much, more, who is picking up that tab? The town citizens of Woburn and Eames Streets in particular, don't want the increased traffic, air, ground pollution and noise of a cement plant running 24/7. And by the way I was one of the few cars that you accounted for in your Traffic report, that Sunday afternoon, when two teenage girls were given clickers, sitting in lawn chairs to account for the amount of traffic on Woburn St. As anyone living here on Woburn St. can rightfully state we are bombarded daily with the endless line of traffic coming and going from the industrial offices. Citizens again voiced concerns of traffic noise, air pollution environmental contamination including causing lead/mercury poisoning that could harm our children and birth defects. The use of our already banned water supply was also mentioned. I would like to know why a completely independent study from Fort Hill was not allowed to be reviewed? After receiving a legal copy I must say it was definitely an eye opener. Trucks are bigger than you had verbally stated, sight distance, noise and other concerns noted were erroneously. One statement noted that if a cement plant were to will operate at legal rate it could generate over 800 truck trips daily. I heard you say you are only starting with 8 trucks and 3 people? When are you really going to are you going to be up front and state your true intentions? Are we NOT watching out for our citizens of Wilmington? The sound produced by the Tresca facility will exceed the Mass regulations significantly when they get comfortable, and begin to grow. I was appalled to hear a comment from one of our board members as "He doesn't have to worry about the noise from the cement trucks going by it's the Fed Ex trucks that people are going to complain about". Thanks. What bothers me is the sound I can hear in Tresco Cement Company's pockets jinglingly with $$$ on the way to the bank, this being at the Wilmington's town peoples expense, health and over all well being. I been approached by many of concerned towns people of these concerns and more. Next meeting is Jan 12, 2016. Hopefully these issues will be brought to attention of our ALL taxpayers. What is going to be done? Rep. Miceli, I hope that you will be able to find a resolution that is favorable to all.

Signed,
Concerned Citizen on

Dear Editor,

I am writing in response to the letters and article in the Town Crier regarding the Butters Row Bridge. I live on Butters Row and agree with what Betty Bigwood wrote in her letter. The residents on Butters Row unanimously opposed increasing the size of the bridge because this would encourage even more cars to use our street as a cut through. The bridge was not built to handle the current level of traffic but neither was Butters Row which is a narrow, winding residential street with no sidewalks. The bridge was built in the 1920's so, contrary to what Jillian Williams said in her letter, it's purpose was not to provide a short cut for drivers who want to avoid the traffic through the center of town. Her statement that "30 years later, nothing has changed" is unfortunately not true. We settled here 30 years ago because Wilmington was a quiet, rural community but this is no longer the case. We have seen the development and population in Wilmington explode yet no new through roads have been added to accommodate the dramatic increase in traffic this development has created. Because of the state's 40b affordable housing law, developers have been permitted to override local zoning ordinances and sometimes threaten to put in high density housing in order to get the abutters and town to approve rezoning. Affordable housing sounds great in theory but creates havoc on the roads that can't handle the increased volume. High density housing such as the apartment complex at the intersection of Rt 62 and Rt 38 were built with no forethought that the traffic would empty onto and clog already congested roadways and force traffic down residential streets. We didn't ask for this over-development yet have to live with the consequences. It is incredible how much the volume of traffic on Butters Row has increased in recent years; the flow of vehicles is constant and never lets up. It doesn't surprise me that the number of cars traveling down my street has increased to 1000 cars/day and if the bridge is widened, this number would probably double. Along with this dramatic increase in traffic has come an increase in problems. Vehicles routinely speed down our street at way over the 25 mile/hour speed limit and I worry about my safety every time I cross the street to get my mail or walk down the street. A traffic study was done several years ago that actually clocked cars traveling as fast as 60 miles/hour on this street.

Around the time that this study was done, a driver traveling at a high rate of speed crashed her car into a tree at the edge of my property. If the tree hadn't been there, she probably would have hit my daughter who was standing in our driveway when the crash occurred. Aggressive drivers tailgate me as I drive down my street and turn into my driveway. I find liquor bottles (in addition to trash) tossed along the side of the road indicating that drivers are drinking and driving. We are subjected to constant noise from pick-up trucks and motorcycles with straight pipes, often purposely revving their engines or blasting their music (with the bass thumping) as they speed down the street. We hear the noise in our home with the windows closed but in the warmer months it permeates the neighborhood and makes it unpleasant to leave our windows open or sit in our back yard. Straight pipes are illegal but are becoming the norm and the law is never enforced in Wilmington as it is in some other communities.

It's a shame that Jillian Williams is inconvenienced because she has to wait in traffic to cross the bridge; that is nothing compared to the safety concerns and deterioration in the quality of their lives that home owners on Butters Row (many of us long time residents) have experienced as a result of the increase in the volume of cars, speeders and noise on the street where we live. Building a 2 lane bridge that feeds onto a narrow, residential road with no sidewalks is certainly no solution to the traffic congestion that continues to worsen each year throughout Wilmington. The town needs to study this town wide problem and propose some viable long term solutions. Solutions that should be considered include what Betty Bigwood proposed in her letter such as making the bridge one way during certain times of the day or implementing methods that other towns use to slow traffic like placing stop signs or speed humps on the street.

Sincerely,
Susan Earls

Elizabeth "Betty" Brabant

Wonderful homemaker; talented seamstress

WILMINGTON - Elizabeth "Betty" Brabant (Sorrentino), age 98, of Wilmington, died peacefully on December 25, 2015. Betty was born to a large first-generation Italian family on August 22, 1917. She was one of eleven children to the late Anthony and Maria Sorrentino from Boston, Massachusetts. Betty spent her childhood years growing up in Boston's Italian North end at Constitution Way. She spent her childhood years with family and friends as a fearless and bold city girl. She met her husband "Rusty" as a teenager, and moved to the suburb of Wilmington, where they married and raised their 4 children, Richard Brabant, the late Amanda Turner, Gail True, and Paul Brabant.

Betty worked as a seamstress for L.L. Bean in Lowell, Massachusetts, in addition to being a homemaker. She sewed all of her children's clothes, including prom gowns and wedding dresses. She had a passion for cooking traditional Italian dishes without ever using a recipe. There was nothing Betty couldn't do in life. She was a problem-solver with a "Do what it takes" attitude.

Betty had a strong passion for helping others. In addition to raising her own family, Betty, most-well known as "Nonnie", and her late husband Rusty, raised 3 grandchildren as their own, and helped so many others throughout her lifetime. She was a selfless woman, always and forever putting the needs of others ahead of her own be it family, friends, animals, or even a complete stranger. Betty was an inspirational, loving woman and an incredible role model to those around her. Above all, Betty was loyal to her church, to God and she loved and prayed to Jesus every day. She was a blessing to her family and an angel here on earth who has now been returned to heaven.

Betty, and her late husband Rusty, are grandparents to 12 grandchildren, 18 great children, 1 great-great grandchild and many extended family members. She is survived by her two sisters Dorothy Ferullo and Catherine Giannone, as well as many nieces and nephews.

Family and friends will gather for a Funeral Service on Thursday, December 31st at 11:00AM, in the Nichol's Funeral Home, 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rt. 62), Wilmington, MA. Interment to follow in Wildwood Cemetery, Wilmington.

Visiting Hours will be held at the Funeral Home on Wednesday, December 30th from 5:00 - 8:00PM.

Memorial donations in Betty's name may be made to St. Jude Children's Hospital, 501 St. Jude Place, Memphis, TN 38105. www.nicholsfuneralhome.com

New Construction, Renovations and Development Opportunities in Wilmington

SHARON ADELMAN
CROWLEY

Crier Correspondent

Sharon@YourTownCrier.com

Here at the Crier, we sometimes receive inquiries about the various construction underway, in addition to other changes that occur throughout town.

The Crier spoke with Valerie Gingrich, Director of Planning and Conservation, for an overview on developments in 2015 and what lies ahead for Wilmington in 2016.

Renovations are now underway at the former Staples, located in the Wilmington Crossing Plaza, across from Market Basket. The space which once housed an office supply retailer will become a Savers thrift store.

Lighting manufacturer Osram relocated from Danvers to 200 Ballardville in Wilmington. Osram is headquartered in Munich, Germany.

Church Street Commons is new construction by Northeastern Development, located at 1 Church Street, at the intersection of Routes 58, 129 and 62. The development will feature 12 units - 4 first-floor storefronts and 8 one and two-bedroom apartments - in the center of town, walking distance to the train. www.northeasterndevelopment.com/properties/church-street-commons

erndevelopment.com/properties/church-street-commons

Murray Hill Subdivision by C.S. Newhouse Builders, Inc. is a 36-lot residential community on the Burlington line: colonial style, single-family homes on a 40-acre site with over 20 acres of open space. The design is atypical in that it provides open spaces for conservation land, Gingrich told the Crier. "The area surrounding the house lots is dedicated to natural open space and trails. Some of those trails will connect to pre-existing trails in Wilmington, creating somewhat of a network," she said. Trails for that project will connect to the trails off Mill Road. www.newhouse-builders.com/murray-hill-subdivision.html

North Wilmington Estates, an extension of McDonald Road, is another conservation subdivision that will feature natural open space. www.northwilmingtonestates.com.

For those who followed the local production "Joy", as previously reported in the Crier,

(www.homenewshere.com/wilmington\_town\_crier/new\_s/article\_e67aa0d4-a015-11e5-94e5-4762410421c5.html) (or HomeNewsHere.com and search "Joy") the building at 45 Industrial Way is now under construction. The site will soon house a Fed Ex Ground.

After many years in limbo, Phase 2 of the Whispering Pines project is underway. A 55+ condominium development on Salem Street, off 93, the second phase is 24 units. Five of those units will be affordable units (for those who qualify), said Gingrich. "We don't have a lot of condo units in town, so adding that unit is helping to create more choices in housing." According to the website, residents will begin to move in spring 2016. www.whisperingpinestwo.com/faq

Looking ahead in 2016, Gingrich said the town will work on a zoning proposal for the intersection of Woburn and Lowell Street. Historically known as "Perry's Corner", the master plan from 2001-03 refers to the area as a village-type setting. "With a locksmith, cobbler, multiple residences," said Gingrich. "A mixed-use area."

The master plan calls for recreating a modern version, with opportunities for housing added to all of the existing services such as Lucci's Supermarket. "You can really create a place where people can live in that area and have an opportunity to do some walking instead of driving," Gingrich said.

With needed transportation

Getting ready to save. The sign is now completed, they've been hiring a lot of local people and renovations are well under way.

improvements, it has the potential to become more of a village feel. The area will stretch to Michael's Place. Two new restaurants were just permitted this year for that area. One will be a diner, Gingrich said.

"We thought it (Perry's Corner) would be a great place to introduce some housing by special permit - we're hoping to pursue at our next town meeting - as there is a lot of activity in that area."

The current zoning would stay the same for that area, Gingrich continued. "We would just add the housing by special permit. We wouldn't create the housing, it would be private development, if they find that's what they want to do. All we're doing is allowing it in that area."

Gingrich said the town is responding to people who want other choices aside from single family housing. "Folks who don't want a large single family home anymore and want to downsize. We need more opportunities for that." By creating other options in appropriate places, homeowners who choose to downsize - including the 55+ community - can have different housing choices and stay in Wilmington. "Folks who are aging don't really want a big house anymore," said Gingrich.

Potential development opportunities in Wilmington include the Honey Dew Donuts and Walgreens on Main Street. There have been no proposals to renovate or occupy the two buildings in 2015. "Everyone would like to see something go in there," said Gingrich, adding that people are really excited about K1 Speed Boston. The indoor karting center, located at 40 Fordham Road, is now open and hiring. www.k1speed.com/boston-location.html

Facilities master plan awarded to Cecil Group

ings and their uses in addition to meeting with department heads to develop a better understanding of their needs.

Public forums will be held during the course of the plan's development to garner input and keep residents informed.

Wilmington is currently managing a substantial portfolio of buildings. While the town's functions are clearly defined by federal and state law and local by-laws, actual delivery of services require analysis from a town-wide perspective to ensure the most efficient and cost-effective options are considered prior to making facility-related decisions.

Evaluations have already been prepared regarding certain municipal buildings however a process is now needed to help make choices that align with community goals and objectives for efficient town-wide facility management.

In an effort to align municipal facilities, The Cecil Group shall gather data on the town's buildings, departments, operations, and space needs to name a few.

Additional components of the information gathering process include facility and site assessments, public user needs, and new technologies.

To ensure the most efficient information gathering methods are employed, the Group will require that each department complete a questionnaire to determine needs and requirements of facilities and departments with a plan to evaluate the data against government office standards.

The Group's team plans to visit all existing facilities and examine their location, configuration and current function with an eye toward improved efficiency.

Facilities will also be considered in the contexts of how they are sited on the property and their relationship to the services they provide to the public, town-wide service delivery and relationships with other functions of government.

The Group will consider the potential for improving neighborhoods in proximity to the facilities or properties in ways that may improve private commercial activity and the resulting locations for a centralized facility.

The Wilmington Schools Master Plan with goals and projections developed by the School Department and School Committee will be evaluated against the other town facility goals during prioritization of the project schedule.

New technologies bring improved methods for measuring space. Modular office furniture systems come in a variety of organizations and qualities, aiding the town in a streamlined approach toward purchasing the most efficient, town-wide system. This methodology also includes efficient use of meeting spaces.

Government entities such as the Massachusetts Records Conservation Board, Supervisor of Public Records and Secretary of State specify means and methods for record management in communities and can provide technical assistance as needed. The Group will evaluate high-level and other documentation requirements to look at current record management programs to ensure suitability of storage, accessibility, authorization, internal rules for disposition, and quality. The outcome will inform the Group's team regarding volume, location and storage needs.

The main goal is improvement. A focus on costs, functionality and accessibility will consider budget needs and programs while site and design decisions will place focus on the image the Town wants to project and its overall legacy.

At the same meeting, Planning Director Valerie Gingrich presented her plan for utilizing parcels of Town-owned land for affordable housing with a focus on seniors. "This ties in nicely with the facilities master plan," said Gingrich, "When that plan is completed, we'll have a good idea of what we have to work with."

Key topics requiring particular focus includes preschool and elementary school facilities, the Roman House, its historic status and suitability of that space for School Administration activities, the library, public safety building, and the fire substation located in North Wilmington.

In addition, The Cecil Group team will also review and make recommendations concerning other historic structures owned and used by the Town including the Harnden Tavern, the Old Town Hall, the South School and the Little West building.

In terms of relationship between Town Land and potential housing use, The Cecil Group will note potential implications of disposition or joint development for housing on Town land based on its experience with multi-family development however the task will not include feasibility assessments, evaluations of Town Housing needs, or concept layouts and design.

The next Facility Master Plan meeting is scheduled for Thursday, January 14, 2016 at the Town Hall in Room 9 at 7:00 pm. Due to a scheduled Finance Committee meeting there are no meetings for the Facility Master Plan scheduled for February. Meetings are scheduled to resume in income tax to be reduced to 5 percent over time. Legislation was passed in 2002 that tied reducing the tax rate by 0.05 percentage points each tax year (until the Part B income tax rate is 5%), to certain economic triggers. First, the inflation adjusted growth in baseline tax revenues for the preceding fiscal year has to exceed 2.5 percentage points.

The second trigger, completed on the 15th of each month between September and December, certifies that the inflation-adjusted growth in baseline tax revenues over the previous three months of the current calendar year compared to the same periods of the prior calendar year is greater than zero.

Once the statutory triggers are met the rate is lowered by .05 percent until it reaches 5.0 percent. The charitable deduction will be restored the year after the tax rate is lowered to 5.0 percent. The last time all growth thresholds were met was in 2014.

Kendal Vaughan hosted a holiday drive to provide Christmas presents for the families of those recovering from addiction. The gifts were collected on December 19th at the West Intermediate School with the help of many volunteers including Shelly Newhouse of the Wilmington Board of Health and Superintendent of Schools, Mary DeLai.

Wilmington resident rallies to end stigma of addiction

From practical items like toiletries and winter coats to "the fun things every kid wants under the tree."

"Kendal wanted to support treatment centers local to Wilmington. Turns out we operate all of those - in Danvers, Lynn and Tewksbury," said Ellrott. "We operate the halfway houses and detoxification centers on the receiving end of these holiday gifts."

The day before the event, Vaughan sat in her living room taking inventory, estimating donations totaled $2,500. Combining that total with donations the following day, her "conservative" estimate soared to $10,000.

"I don't think anyone was prepared for the volume of donations we were going to have that morning," she said. "People just kept coming and coming with armfuls of brand new gifts. It was extraordinary."

Originally, Lahey vans were designated for transport but the donations exceeded capacity. "People were volunteering their trucks," said Vaughan, who drove a packed car to a Danvers facility. "We met the most grateful, kind people. There was shock and profound gratitude from all the facilities. The kindest people I've ever worked with."

The gifts and handmade cards were all dispatched to addiction treatment homes in Tewksbury, Danvers and Lynn, said Ellrott. "Eighteen children (all under five) and 227 adults received gifts because of Wilmington's commitment to reducing the stigma around the current opioid and addiction crisis."

Vaughan said she absolutely wants to do this again next year, and she hopes to keep the momentum going. "I just spoke to the director at Heart House in Tewksbury to gage needs on an ongoing basis."

Her next initiative may be a diaper drive as she seeks out a location that will accept diapers throughout the year.

"I would love to hear from people, for guidance and input on what to do next," she added. "It's not just about raising supplies. A lot of support groups already exist in town. We want to make people aware of what's already here so that addicts and their families can find the resources they need in order to recover."

Redmen win a thriller to take K of C championship

Stay perfect on season at 6-0

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON - Imagine how good they will be once they start playing well. The Tewksbury Boys Basketball team has set some big goals for themselves this season, and they are off to a good start in their attempt to achieve those goals with a 6-0 record after a thrilling 64-62 win over Sharon in the championship game of the Knights of Columbus Larry McGrath Tournament on Tuesday night at Wilmington High.

But if you ask Redmen coach Phil Connors there is still plenty of work to be done for his senior laden squad if they are going to be the team he believes they can be. After winning both games of the K of C tourney, including a 63-57 win over Arlington Catholic in Monday night's tournament opener, Connors lamented his team's uneven performance in both games.

"We just survived to get this win, but we didn't play well," Connors said. "It was a terrible (couple of days). I thought we played one good quarter in both games and that was the third quarter tonight. We were lucky to come out of here with a win."

The Redmen were led in the championship game by senior guard and Tournament MVP Nate Tenaglia, who scored a game high 22 points, leaving him with 961 points for his career as he continues his march towards 1,000 career points, while junior Tyler Ward came off the bench to provide an offensive spark scoring nine second half points, including a pair of clutch three pointers in the third quarter, and three clutch points in the game's final minute to secure the win.

Senior forward Adam Gajjaoui added eleven points for the Redmen, while senior guard Ryan Briggs added nine of his own, and senior forward Justin Derrah had eight.

The fourth quarter was played at a frenetic pace with Tewksbury going out to a 55-45 lead early in the quarter after a bucket by Riggs with 5:10 left in the game, but Sharon began to apply pressure on defense, forcing the Redmen into turnovers and scoring eight points in a row to close with in 55-53 with 3:24 left in the game when Ricardo Ripley knocked down a pair of free throws.

Briggs would break the Sharon scoring run with a hoop with 3:05 left in the game and when Tenaglia nailed a short jumper with 1:43 left in the game, it looked like the Redmen had withstood the Sharon rally.

But the Eagles weren't done, as a basket by Matt Lowerre, a steal and a basket by Josh Rotman brought them to within 61-60 with exactly 1:00 left in the game. Ward would give the Redmen some breathing room with a bucket off of a great pass from Briggs with 50 seconds left, and after Sharon once again closed within a point with a pair of free throws with 43 seconds left, Ward would connect on one of two free throws to make the score 64-62 with 8.7 seconds left in the contest.

Sharon had one more chance to tie, but Derrah came up with a huge block at the buzzer to preserve the win and the tournament championship for the Redmen.

"Justin made a great play to hustle back and he made a good block," Connors said. "He knew the kid was going to his right, so he went up the right way and made a great play."

Wildcats drop a pair in K of C - Larry McGrath tournament

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON - With a young team that lost eight seniors off of last year's squad, and currently has three sophomores seeing significant playing time, there are going to some growing pains this season for the Wilmington High Boys Basketball team, and in this week's Knights of Columbus Larry McGrath Tournament, those pains were on full display.

Despite giving their best effort in both Monday night's first round game against Sharon and in Tuesday's consolation game against Arlington Catholic, the Wildcats came up short in both contests, dropping the AC game by a score of 64-42, after falling by a score of 64-57 to Sharon.

The two losses dropped the Wildcats to 0-6 on the season. Wilmington coach Joe Maiella wasn't discouraged by the losses, but rather knows his team must simply keep working on their game if they want to break into the win column.

"We just have to stay positive and keep getting better every day," Maiella said. "We've got a lot of young guys who are giving us their best every time out there, but it is hard with three sophomores who are still learning the game. I know they will keep working at it and keep getting better."

Against Arlington Catholic, the Wildcats struggled almost right from the start with a cold shooting first quarter that saw AC come out of the frame holding an 18-6 lead, and Wilmington searching for answers to their struggling offense.

"We struggle offensively and one of the reasons is that we have no inside game," Maiella said. "We just don't have the size to be able to score inside, so we have to rely on scoring transition baskets and making three pointers and when we aren't doing that it's hard for us to score."

The Wildcats offensive struggles kept them from hitting a field goal from the 4:53 mark of the first quarter all the way until the 5:54 mark of the second quarter when junior guard Joseph Gaudreau (nine points) snapped a 12-0 run with a three pointer to bring Wilmington within 20-11.

But turnovers doomed the Wildcats from there, as neither team would score again until AC's Edwin Woods buried a three pointer with 2:10 left in the half to make the score 23-11. During the scoring drought the Wildcats got some fine defense from Gaudreau and Dan Gracia, who came up with several steals to set up offensive opportunities.

"We turned the ball over a lot in the first half, which really hurt us," Maiella said. "We were getting turnovers of our own, but we weren't able to do anything with them."

The Wildcats went to the half trailing 27-13, an despite getting their offense rolling a little more in the third quarter, scoring 19 points in that frame alone, they were unable to cut into the AC lead, trailing by as many as 20 points late in the quarter at 47-27.

Wilmington would score the last five points of the quarter, however, with senior forward Matt Woods knocking down a short jumper with 27 seconds left, and sophomore guard Graham Smith nailing a three pointer at the buzzer to make the score 47-32 headed into the final quarter.

If the third quarter offered a glimpse of the positives that lie ahead for the Wildcats, the fourth quarter was a reminder that there is still work to be done. Despite the best efforts of senior guard Matt Spurr, who would finish with a team high 11 points, including four in the fourth quarter, the Wildcats scored only ten points in the frame and saw AC extend their lead and finally walk away with the 64-42 win.

Spurr was elected to the All-Tournament team for his efforts both in this game and in Monday night's game.

On Monday night the Wildcats had suffered a 64-57 loss to Sharon, in a game where they lead by a point with about three minute left. Wilmington got a team high 12 points from Graham Smith, while Spurr had ten points.

Pee Wee 3's pick up big win over Lynnfield-Saugus

The Wilmington Youth Hockey PeeWee 3's picked up a big win on Sunday afternoon, outlasting Lynnfield-Saugus in a barn burner of a contest to come away with an 8-5 win and improve their record on the season to 5-5-2.

The Wildcats offensive outburst was led by four goals, including a natural hat trick in the first period, from forward Chris Patterson, as well as a hat trick from fellow forward Thomas Dalton, who stepped out of his usual position as goaltender for the Wildcats to provide an offensive spark.

Wilmington's other goal was scored by Anthony Angiuoni, who also added an assist in the game, while Colby Medeiros had three assists, Shane Roberts had two assists and Patterson and Will Kenyon each added an assist of their own.

Sean O'Donoghue filled in for Dalton between the pipes for the Wildcats, and did a fine job holding the powerful Lynnfield-Saugus offense in check.

The Wildcats got off to a great start in the first period, mainly due to the efforts of Patterson, who scored at 7:52, 5:38 and 2:45 of the period for his natural hat trick which gave Wilmington a 3-0 lead at the end of one period. Kenyon, Roberts and Medeiros assisted on the goals, with the third goal coming on the power play.

Lynnfield tried to fight back in the second period, closing to within 3-1 just two minutes into the period, but Angiuoni would extend the lead to three goals once again with a score at the 5:18 mark on an assist from Roberts.

A great sequence late in the period led to the Wildcats extending their lead, when O'Donoghue made an outstanding pad save on a one on one bid to deny Lynnfield, and moments later Patterson converted for his fourth goal of the game on an assist from Medeiros with 3:27 left in the frame.

Lynnfield would add two goals late in the period to make it interesting at 5-3 heading into the third.

With Adam Ippolito doing a tremendous job as a defensive forward and the Wildcats defense core of Kenyon, Shane Costello, Aardarsh Sivakumar and Jordan Legere being equally outstanding in their roles, the Wildcats were able to clear the puck out of their zone to set up scoring opportunities and Dalton soon took advantage, getting his hat trick with goals at 11:39, 8:52 and 7:47 of the period.

Angiuoni assisted on Dalton's first goal, while Medeiros picked up his third assist of the game on Dalton's third goal.

Clippers leap past Cavs in Jr. Division Youth Hoop

Junior Division (3rd & 4th grade) Clippers 24, Cavs 11

The Clippers controlled play from wire to wire on an excellent display of basketball skill. Mason Veits led the way with seven points, five steals, and five blocks.

Not to be outdone, Sheamus MacDonald scored six points while cleaning up on the boards. Kenny Ryder had five steals to go along with his twopoints. Liam Kelley also chipped in with four points while leading the team with five rebounds against the much bigger Cavalier front court.

While it doesn't show up in the box score, William Hunt had perhaps his best game as he has improved very quickly. Tyler Chesborough played great defense and is already showing much improved ballhandling skills. Andrew Gallante had a number of great passes and played very smart defense. William Holloway had three points and played very aggressive defense that led to a number of opportunities.

Thunder 17, Lakers 10

Thunder point guard Vincent Ciano opened up the scoring with four points in the first period and finished the game with seven points. The Thunder took a 10-2 lead into half time. Nathan Galanis, Matt Clark, Aaron Ramsey and Matt Ramsey all scored two points and played dominating defense. Jack Ramsey and Ryan King played stellar defense, and created turnovers in the final minutes of the game.

Celtics 23, Heat 10

Wildcats drop a pair in K of C - Larry McGrath Tournament

As Sharon proved the next night in losing by only two points to undefeated Tewksbury in the championship game of the tournament, they were a quality opponent that the Wildcats gave all they could handle until the final minutes.

"Last night was an even game," Maiella said on Tuesday night. "In that game we turned the ball over too many times in the second half, but we were still right in the game. Finally it came down to them hitting a three pointer, and then we missed one, and we had to start fouling and that was the game."

While the losses continue to mount for the Wildcats, Maiella's belief in his team has not wavered, as he knows he has a group of talented, if still unproven players.

"We have a lot of good athletes on this team. Our seniors Matt Spurr and Matt Woods give us everything they have to help this team win, and our junior Joseph Gaudreau does too," Maiella said. "And our younger guys keep working as well, and they know we are building towards something. I think we are getting better every day, and games like these against good team will only help us get better. But the bottom line is that we are 0-6. It would be nice for these guys to get a win."

The Tewksbury Boys Basketball team was crowned champion of the Wilmington K of C Christmas Tournament here reps of the K of C Doc Orndorff (far left) and Bud Callahan (2nd from right) present the championship plaque to TMHS Boys Hoop Captains, Adam Gajjaoui, Justin Derragh, and Natre Tenaglia (4).

Conners also loved what he saw from Ward on the night. In fact, it was probably the only thing he loved about his team's performance on the night. Not only did Ward, who had not seen any meaningful minutes in any game this season, score those three clutch points down the stretch, he had hit a pair of three pointers in the third quarter, one coming while the game was tied, and another coming with the Redment trailing by a point. His efforts earned him a spot on the All-Tournament team, and also earned him praise from his coach.

"The one positive I would take away from these two games was Tyler," Conners said. "I thought he did a great job off the bench. He had not played any meaningful minutes the whole season. I didn't think he would be scared in that situation. You see some guys come in with that deer in the headlights look, but he had that look like he was dying to get in the game. I thought he did a great job. That was the only takeaway from (the two game) that I was happy with. The rest was not good at all."

Early on in the game the Redmen were struggling a little with their shooting, getting some open looks, but being unable to knock down shots at their usual clip. Tenaglia did have seven points in the first quarter, but the Redmen trailed 15-14 at the end of one.

"We are in a bit of a behavior funk, which is turning into our basketball,"

Conners said of his team's slow start. "We need to check our character and that will start tomorrow at practice."

The Redmen trailed by four points, at 32-28 at the half, but came out strong to start the second half, with sophomore guard Giovanni Ciampa nailing a three pointer in the opening minute of the third quarter to make it 32-31 and Gajjaoui knocking down a pair of free throws to make it 33-32 for the Redmen with 6:27 left in the quarter.

Later in the quarter, with the game tied at 41-41, Ward would hit the first of his three pointers to give the Redmen a 44-41 lead with 1:54 left, and then with 52 seconds left in the quarter, he would hit another to make it 47-43 in favor of the Redmen, who took a 49-43 lead into the fourth quarter, setting up the final, frantic finish.

In Monday night's 63-57 win over Arlington Catholic, the Redmen lead by 15 points; at 50-35 at the end of three quarters, before AC fought back to close within 55-52 with just over three minutes to play in the game before the Redmen held on for the victory.

Tenaglia led the way on offense for the Redmen with a game high 33 points, including five clutch free throws down the stretch, while senior guard Brian Nazaire had a career high eight points and Giovanni Ciampa chipped in with ten points.

At 70th Anniversary, Winchester Scholarship Foundation has many reasons to celebrate

BY RYAN LAROCHE

This year marks the 70th anniversary of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation (WSF), an organization that provides scholarships for Winchester High School graduates with the support of Winchester residents. Originally formed by the Winchester Mothers' Association in 1945, the foundation began by awarding $150 scholarships to six recipients per year. In 2015 alone, 70 years after its formation, the foundation was able to donate a total sum of $378,950 to 120 new and former graduates of Winchester High School.

In the past 15 years, WSF has awarded 1,200 scholarships in excess of four million dollars to students who have graduated from Winchester High School. The foundation recognizes the widening gap between higher education costs and the ability of families to pay them and strives to provide assistance to those families.

In order to pay out that many scholarships, the WSF begins a mailing campaign after Thanksgiving. Through that they've established 46 endowed funds. They're also about to receive their fourth donation from the Class of 1960. That class has also challenged other classes to donate, which spurred the Class of 1962 and the Class of 2010 to create a fund starting with $10,000.

Students of all kinds have received scholarships from the WSF. There's no requirements and qualifications are need based. Students simply fill out an application each year. Though most go to four-year schools, scholarships are available to students who attend any accredited college or university.

Prospective applicants can print out an application form in the guidance counselor's office or on the website www.winchestersf.org.

Treasurer Ted Lamson called the scholarships free money with no strings attached.

The amount of free money continues to grow ever year. 15 years ago, WSF gave out $154,500 in scholarships. For 2015-2016, the organization will grant $378,950. Lamson said it will only get bigger in the next decade.

That's pretty amazing for an outfit that Lamson said is "not as well-known as it should be." And compared to other local institutions such as the Winton Club and En Ka Society that's probably a true statement.

Even still, thanks to the generosity of Winchester residents, the foundation has amassed enough money to dole out 120 scholarships for two years straight. The endowed funds are:

- Herbert Goff ($143,088 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Laurence Owen ($34,730 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Patricia Eberle Greene ($145,836 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Laurel Ingram Haines ($123,345 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Leonor Rich ($31,187 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Margaret Hood ($100,882 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Medical School ($290,088 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Nikola G. Andon ($411,842 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Alfred R. and Katherine T. Meurling ($212,787 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- John F. Murphy Jr. and Mary E. Murphy ($24,101 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Michael Wade Rodgers ($439,662 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Dr. Donald E. McLean ($44,777 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Antonio L. and Venezia Mezzacappa ($179,736 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Regina Mingoelli Pekoz ($69,854 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Community Education Group ($67,749 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Karen Lee Butt ($37,907 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- Elizabeth Naven ($9,123 in net assets at the end of 2014)

- WHS Science and Winchester to S-4

Movie Reviews & Box Office News

"Joy"

LAWRENCE PLAYS THE TITLE CHARACTER, JOY, whose last name is never revealed but who's based on real-life home-shopping magnate Joy Mangano, creator of the Miracle Mop and an executive producer of the film.

BY: SANDY COHEN,
AP ENTERTAINMENT
WRITER

Jennifer Lawrence is a force, whether as the hero of "The Hunger Games" or the overburdened, inventive single mother she plays in "Joy."

The Oscar winner is in every frame of David O. Russell's new film, shining even among a star-studded cast with a performance that brings continuity to the writer-director's ambitious but flawed story about the dogged persistence of a determined entrepreneur.

Lawrence plays the title character, Joy, whose last name is never revealed but who's based on real-life home-shopping magnate Joy Mangano, creator of the Miracle Mop and an executive producer of the film. Text onscreen at its opening says it is "inspired by true stories of daring women, one in particular."

Russell's eighth feature film (and third collaboration with Lawrence) introduces Joy in the years before she makes herself a millionaire. Working in a meaningless job, she struggles as the financial and emotional center of a dysfunctional, multigenerational family. She lives in a crumbling house with her grandmother (Diane Ladd), her soap-opera obsessed mom (Virginia Madsen), along with her two children and her ex-husband, who lives in the basement.

Flashbacks and daydreams show Joy as a bright, imaginative child who reluctantly followed a more conventional path when family responsibilities took hold. But when a flash of inspiration hits after years of life dissatisfaction, she bets her future on it.

With moral support from her grandmother and ex-husband, seed money from her father's wealthy girlfriend (Isabella Rossellini), and a glimmer of hope from a QVC executive (Bradley Cooper), Joy stakes everything she has on her new invention: a self-wringing mop with a machine-washable head.

Along the way, she experiences elation and despair, personally and professionally. Lawrence brings all the power and intensity required to portray a devoted mother and fierce businesswoman growing up through her 30s, even if the actress looks sweetly youthful throughout. It's her fire and range that speaks.

And the 25-year-old star doesn't take anything away from older actresses, who relish in delicious opportunities of their own. Rossellini, 63, is perfectly cast as an Italian widow, while 80-year-old Ladd glows as a doting grandmother and the film's narrator. Madsen, 54, melts into her character, a recluse in oversized glasses whose whole world is a TV soap opera starring Susan Lucci.

Lucci, 68, plays a powerful heroine in the fictional soap that's meant to be analogous to Joy's journey of self-discovery, but the technique doesn't really work, especially since the mother's obsession with the show seems to border on mental illness. Still, it's great to see Lucci back in her element.

Returning Russell collaborators Robert DeNiro ("Silver Linings Playbook") and Cooper ("Silver Linings Playbook," "American Hustle") each predictably deliver, even if their characters aren't well-drawn. At one point, Cooper's sympathetic home-shopping exec tells Joy he's too busy to hear her pitch, then goes into a lengthy explanation about the history of QVC, which seems oddly expository. The script suffers from further clunkiness when Joy explains her business plans to her 5-year-old daughter (endearingly played by twins Aundrea and Gia Gadsby).

While Russell had unfettered access to Mangano, he says he took liberties with the facts of her story, creating a fictional half-sister (Elisabeth Rohm) to add drama beyond the despondent mom and codependent dad. It's hard to know what really happened, but it seems like a woman supporting her family while building a multimillion-dollar fortune with nothing more than ingenuity and determination would be dramatic enough.

Despite the convoluted family dynamics and less-than-successful use of the show-within-a-show trope, Lawrence makes Joy easy to believe and easy to root for, no matter what she's selling.

"Joy," a Twentieth Century Fox release, is rated PG-13 by the Motion Picture Association of America for "brief strong language." Running time: 124 minutes. Three stars out of four.

BY: LINDSEY BAHR,
AP FILM WRITER

J.J. Abrams may not elevate the language of "Star Wars," but he sure is fluent in it. "Star Wars: The Force Awakens" is no more and no less than the movie that made us love it in the first place. In fact, it's basically the same thing. Isn't that what we all wanted anyway? It's hard to talk rationally about "Star Wars." It is a deeply silly thing, with a genuine, undeniable hold on our culture. Chalk it up to nostalgia, collective arrested development or the ineffable. But for many, the magic of "Star Wars" is inseparable from the magic of the movies and, hey, that's no small thing.

These movies make us lose ourselves in the spectacle. They make us forget our best instincts. They make us love the advertising as much as the art. They make us kids again.

In this way, "The Force

Awakens," the seventh movie in this improbable yet inevitable series, delivers.

It's a movie made by someone who loves "Star Wars" deeply. Someone who can see more clearly than even its creator what made it so special to so many people. Abrams has taken everything that we adore about that first film, delicately mixed up a few elements, and churned out a reverent homage that's a heck of a lot of fun to watch.

From the opening scroll to the sequel-setup ending, he manages to hit each beat of its 38-year-old predecessor.

Abrams has essentially passed the torch on to its new cast by making them amalgamations of the originals. You'll know it when you see it. Who cares if it's "Star Wars" Mad-Libs?

There's the resistance-affiliated droid, who ends up stranded on a desert planet carrying a secret message (BB-8). There's the nobody with the dead-end job and a Jedi obsession (Daisy Ridley's Rey), who has a life-changing encounter with said droid. There's the reckless kid uncertain of his allegiances (John Boyega's Finn). There's the cocky pilot (Oscar Isaac's Poe Dameron). There's the powerful, masked villain, too (Adam Driver's Kylo Ren).

The plot is as unwieldy and MacGuffin-filled as one might expect. It almost serves no purpose to go into the specifics at this point beyond the fact that the galaxy is in disarray, an evil army is growing (as is a resistance), and a series of coincidences help Rey collect a "Wizard of Oz"-worthy posse to help get BB-8 back to its rightful owners.

This time, it's all because of Luke Skywalker (Mark Hamill). He's vanished. Those are the first words on the screen and the last we'll say about the big mystery.

The action is nearly non-stop, as is the humor, which kicks into gear when Han Solo (Harrison Ford) finally shows up. Ford is in his element — delightful, energetic, funny, brash and fully Han, bantering with Chewie and everyone with the same verve he showed nearly 40 years ago.

If only the same showcase was given to Carrie Fisher, who is woefully, inexcusably underused as Leia.

As for the new characters, Ridley's Rey is a dream. She is feisty, endearingly awe-filled, capable and magnetic. She is the new anchor. She is our Luke, and she's much cooler than he ever was.

Driver's Kylo Ren is also a disarmingly powerful presence, whose wickedness seeps through the mask. Boyega is appealing as Finn, too, even if his character doesn't quite make sense on paper. (How do empathy, guilt and personality develop in a man who has been trained since birth to be a Stormtrooper?) But that's taking things too seriously.

Others are less memorable, including Gwendoline Christie's Captain Phasma, and Andy Serkis's preposterous-looking Supreme Leader Snoke. And while Abrams captures the lively, hokey and practical visual fun of the originals, he occasionally slips into generic blockbuster mode.

But those moments pass, and all it takes is a perfect John Williams music cue to transport you back into the cozy blanket of that galaxy far, far away.

Loving "Star Wars" without reserve isn't an easily justifiable thing, and neither is the fun of "The Force Awakens." They are intrinsically linked. To love the original is to love this one. On its own, "The Force Awakens" probably isn't much. It's not likely to convert anyone, either.

For many weeks 79 students have prepared for the musical production of Disney's Alice in Wonderland, Jr. Travel down the rabbit hole with Alice and join her madcap adventures in Wonderland as she chases the White Rabbit, races the Dodo Bird, gets tied up with the Tweedles, raps with bubble-blowing Caterpillar, goes to the craziest tea-party ever, and beats the Queen of Hearts at her own game! This face paced stage adaptation of Alice in Wonderland features such classic Disney songs as "I'm Late," "The Un-birthday Song" and "Zip-A-Dee-Do-Dee" Alice is a musical feast for the entire family. For those attending the Sunday matinee, be sure to stay for the Character Meet and Greet immediately following the show. Alice and all of her friends will be available to greet their fans.

Directed by Lori Loussedes and Stephen MacDonald with musical direction by Anna Wentlent and choreography by Lindsey McGovern, the musical is based on the novels The Adventures of Alice in Wonderland and Through the Looking Glass by Lewis Carroll, and the 1951 Disney animated feature, Alice in Wonderland.

-Mapping the future (Reading)- "Reading's interactive mapping site, MapGeo, has a new look," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The site is designed for property owners, visitors, businesses, and Town staff."

"Users can look up property information, display several vintages of aerial photos, and turn on overlay themes such as zoning, wetlands, or topography."

"Reading continues to offer new technology tools in an effort to make town government more open and interactive, and to easily provide residents with important information," said Reading Town Manager Bob LeLacheur, "I encourage residents use the new MapGeo."

"MapGeo combines Reading GIS data with Google maps to provide the best of both worlds. The new design offers: more modern, flexible, user-friendly interface; works on all mobile devices - access maps anytime, anywhere; seamlessly integrates with Google Street View, Directions and Places; integrates with Bing maps, including Birds eye view; provides a link to the property record card for each property."

-Star power (Wilmington)- "Brittany Collins of Wilmington is a recent recipient of the MS Shining Star Award, presented by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society," notes the Wilmington "Town Crier."

"Each year the chapter awards top volunteers and fundraisers who have helped those living with MS, a disease of the central nervous system which is disabling, unpredictable and without a known cure. Many recipients of the Shining Star Award either have MS or know someone afflicted with the disease."

"Collins' involvement began in nursing school. 'As a nurse I worked with MS patients who inspired me.' Nine years later, she still volunteers."

"A Wilmington resident of 25 years and 2007 graduate of Wilmington High School, Collins is a registered nurse for Lahey Hospital's Resource Team. She regularly staffs the medical tent at MS Society fundraising events, considered a 'Jill of all trades' for volunteering in different capacities..."

-Stringing the lights (Winchester, Wakefield, Woburn, Tewksbury, and Stoneham - oh, my!)- "Two major electrical projects are coming to Winchester - or, rather, going through Winchester, to be more specific," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"National Grid and Eversource (formerly NSTAR) have teamed up for two projects: one to connect a proposed new underground transmission line that will connect the Eversource Woburn Substation (located on Cross Street in Woburn) to National Grid's Wakefield Junction Substation (located on Salem Street in Wakefield) and a second that will connect a proposed new underground transmission line from Everett to Woburn. There's also a third project that involves an overhead line going through southern New Hampshire (Londonderry, Windham, Hudson, and Pelham) and northern Mass. (Dracut, Andover and Tewksbury)."

"The first project, connecting Woburn to Wakefield, involves a new underground 345-kV line. The second project, connecting Everett to Woburn involves a new underground 115-kV line. Both projects are transmission projects, which are the backbone of the electric system, carrying a bulk supply of electricity. These projects would serve as a backup in case the system ever crashed. They would not affect local power lines."

"The preferred route of the first project carries it along Cross Street into Winchester, then up Washington Street into Woburn and Stoneham, then onto Elm Street in Stoneham and Broadway in Wakefield, before ending on Salem Street. A couple route variations would take the project along Montvale Avenue to Main Street in Stoneham instead of Washington Street. It could then go past the Wakefield High School on Farm Street."

"The preferred route of the second project carries it along the Mystic River in Everett through Boston, Somerville, Medford, Winchester before finally ending in Woburn near Horn Pond. An alternate route could bypass Boston and Somerville before meeting up with the preferred route in Medford. It would then splinter in Winchester, going around the town center, past Winter Pond and finally arriving in Woburn."

"Project Manager Bev Schultz said the entire project should last two years with six months spent in Winchester. Service would be ready by 2018."

"More information can be found at the website www.MA-NHSolutions.com or by calling 1-844-646-8427."

Athletes & Activities

By: Steve Algeri

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA: The Boston Bruins will host the Montreal Canadiens on New Year's Day at Gillette Stadium in the NHL Winter Classic. The NHL has held a Winter Classic every year since 2008 when Buffalo hosted Pittsburgh. However, it was all spawned from the 2003 Heritage Classic which was the first NHL game to be played outdoors as part of the regular season. Which two NHL teams played in that?

The National Soccer Coaches Association of America has recognized Houghton (N.Y.) women's soccer coach David Lewis as the 2015 NCCAA Division I Women's Soccer Coach of the Year.

Lewis coached the Reading High girls soccer team from 1983 to 1986.

It's the first national coach of the year award for Lewis. He is a six-time NSCAA NAIA Northeast Region Coach of the Year and has won nine conference/divisional coach of the year awards in his 25 years at the helm of the program. He holds an all-time record of 379-98-30.

The 2015 season was a monumental one for the Highlanders. They advanced to the Empire 8 Tournament for the first time, won the NCCAA Midwest Region Championship and then capped the campaign by winning the NCCAA Division I National Title. The team finished the season with a record of 16-6-2, which included a dramatic penalty kick shootout win over Mississippi College in the title game.

"God has blessed me with a great group of young ladies who represent Houghton well and I am privileged with the opportunity to coach them," said Lewis. "The COY award is a testimony to their dedication, discipline, and determination to uphold the foundational philosophy for our team as well as for all of the teams of our athletic department."

Twenty-four head coaches and four assistant coaches from around the country were recognized by their fellow NSCAA peers as the 2015 NSCAA National Coaches of the Year and 2015 NSCAA National Assistant Coaches of the Year. The awards cover all levels of soccer, including high school, junior college, NAIA, NCCAA, and all levels of NCAA.

The recipients were named earlier this week on the NSCAA Coach of the Year Show.

Coach Lewis and the other honorees will be presented their award Friday, Jan. 15 at the annual NSCAA Awards Banquet, held in conjunction with the NSCAA Convention in Baltimore.

About the NSCAA Founded in 1941 and based in Kansas City, Mo., the National Soccer Coaches Association of America (NSCAA) is a non-profit organization with a mission to educate coaches, encourage excellence and serve the soccer community.

Two local skaters are members of the St. John's Prep varsity hockey team. Reading's DAN TIGHE, a senior forward, and Winchester's DAN HENNESSEY, a senior forward. Tighe scored a goal in his team's recent 5-0 win at Woburn.

A popular college hockey venue only an hour north of this area is the Whittemore

Center at the University of New Hampshire. This season fans are being introduced to the Whittemore Center's new state-of-the-art video scoreboard, which hangs at center ice. The 11,900-pound four-sided board features 9 x 15-foot video screens that broadcast live action, lights and graphics — and of course, instant replays of goals and other game highlights.

"I've always loved the Whitt, but we've been missing a little bit of excitement in the absence of having a video board," said UNH men's hockey coach Dick Umile, who explains that the board is vital for both recruiting and fan experience. "Recruits like to see all the bells and whistles."

So do fans — which is among the reasons John Small (Class of 1976) stepped forward with the first gift toward the $1 million addition. A UNH trustee, Small says hockey was an important part of his social life as an undergrad and remains a valuable connection to his alma mater now.

"Keeping the Whitt great is what it's all about," said UNH Athletic Director Marty Scarano. "For years now, it's been our objective to make this one of the best — if not the best — venues in college hockey. We think this is one of the very best hi-def boards in the nation and probably the best board in Hockey East. We're awfully proud of this."

With one indoor karting center already open in the Plymouth-Kingston area, K1 Speed Boston in Wilmington becomes the company's second New England location. The largest karting company in the United States, K1 Speed continues to grow. The new Boston facility brings the total number of K1 Speed facilities to just over 30 — and there are more facilities scheduled to open in the near future.

The new Wilmington facility brings K1 Speed to one of America's most loved and historic cities. Boston, home of such storied franchises as the Red Sox, Celtics, and Bruins, is a sporting town through and through. K1 Speed hopes to tap into this love of sports and introduce novice and veteran racers alike to the thrill of indoor karting.

What makes K1 Speed unique is its commitment to all-electric go-karts. Though competitors have followed, K1 Speed is the industry leader and really brought electric karting into the public consciousness. Opening its first center in Carlsbad, CA in 2003, K1 Speed has since expanded its reach throughout the United States and even internationally, to cities as far as Mexico City. Now Boston residents will be able to experience the excitement of indoor karting for themselves.

Answer to this week's question: Montreal faced Edmonton on Nov. 22, 2003 at Commonwealth Stadium in Edmonton, Alberta. The Canadiens won, 4-3, in front of 57,167.

Outside of those endowed funds, the WSF has received anonymous donations and $3,000 each year from the Murphy Education Fund started by local lawyers. It all adds up to hundreds of thousands of dollars for those looking to further their education.

One such recipient, Michael Foley, Winchester High School Class of 2005, attests to the value of the foundation towards his career. A beneficiary of WSF scholarships throughout his four years in medical school, Foley received his medical degree from the University of New England in May. WSF also provided him with scholarships throughout his four-year undergrad program at Boston University. "The cost of medical school is significant, but there are very few scholarships available for med students," says Foley, who is now a resident at Methodist Hospital in Brooklyn, NY. "I'm incredibly grateful for the help that the WSF has offered over the years, as both an undergrad and a med student."

Michael's twin sister Meagan and older brother David (WHS Class of 2003) also benefited from the foundation. Both students received four annual scholarships from WSF throughout their years of undergrad at the University of Connecticut and Northeastern University, respectively. Today, Meagan is an athletic trainer and David is the new recipient of a Suffolk Law School degree.

For three years, WSF provided support for all three children at the same time. Their mother Anne, a lifelong Winchester resident says, "... Since our twins were born we have always realized the time would come to have three children in college at the same time. The cost of college tuition today can be very overwhelming. The generosity of WSF has certainly helped the process go easier... As a 1971 graduate of Winchester High School and one of seven children, I am well aware of the great work done by WSF. I, myself, and a few of my siblings were awarded scholarships that allowed us to attend and graduate from good schools. Because of the longstanding and solid reputation, the WSF is still available today to help my children."

When Anne Foley received her WSF scholarship in 1971, her award of $400 covered her total cost of tuition as well as her books. With today's hiked tuition costs, financial support is more necessary than ever. WSF aims to help close the financial gaps that may otherwise prevent Winchester graduates from attending schools of their choice.

"Congratulations and thank you to the WSF for 70 years of helping students and families with their financial support that is so appreciated," says Foley. "May the tradition continue for many years to come."

WSF is a voluntary, non-profit, tax-exempt organization funded primarily by Winchester residents and businesses. Many have donated property or other assets in their wills or endowed a memorial or honorary scholarship in someone's name. The effort is directed by an elected board of community members.

Eligible candidates must have graduated from Winchester Public Schools (or alternatives as noted on the application form), received an acceptance for further education at a school or college, demonstrated financial need, and possess characteristics including ambition, service, good citizenship and extracurricular activities.

This year, $102,650 was awarded to 40 members of WHS Class of 2015 alone. Students must reapply each year for a scholarship. For more information about Winchester Scholarship Foundation or to make a donation to this organization, please visit www.winchestersf.org

This week's Sampler: Coeur D'Alene

Large Coeur d'Alene a delight

The Coeur d'Alene is an exceptionally large, richly windowed, Chalet-style home plan. A delight to behold, its expansive interior offers a multitude of gathering and private spaces.

Natural wood posts and a two-high stack of gables accented by king posts and struts create an impressively lofty entry. Custom windows accent the two front gables that flank the central foyer, all nicely set off against a backdrop of clean-lined metal roofing.

Inside, a large dining room is to the left of the vaulted foyer, and a spacious library with a gas fireplace is on the right. Ahead is a bright and spacious vaulted living room. Wide windows flank the much larger mantled stone-veneer fireplace centered at the rear. Double doors on both sides of the room open onto the large curved patio that spans the back of the home.

Squared, natural wood columns mark the passageway that leads past the butler's pantry to the generously sized kitchen. Two work islands add to the abundant counter space. One has a wide cook top, while the one rimmed by a raised eating bar has a prep sink.

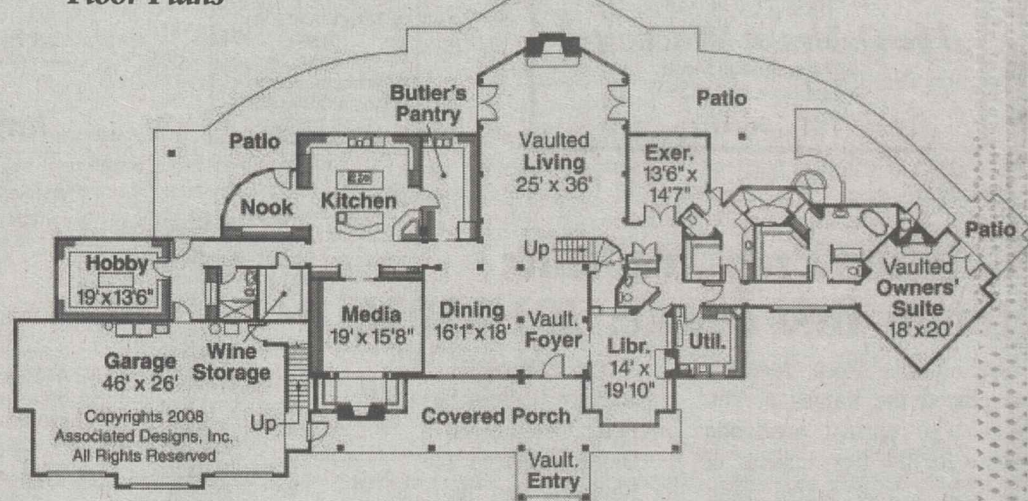

A wide hearth fronts the roomy wood-fired baking oven on one side, and another wall of ovens is on the left. A curved wall of windows wraps around the side nook, which also has a built-in buffet and hutch, and the kitchen opens into a media room with another fireplace in a hearth room alcove. A wine storage cellar and hobby room are further to the left.

Owners' suite luxuries include a fireplace, and both his and hers walk-in closets and bathrooms, the later with an elegant claw-foot tub. An exercise room, and an exterior hot tub and shower, are nearby.

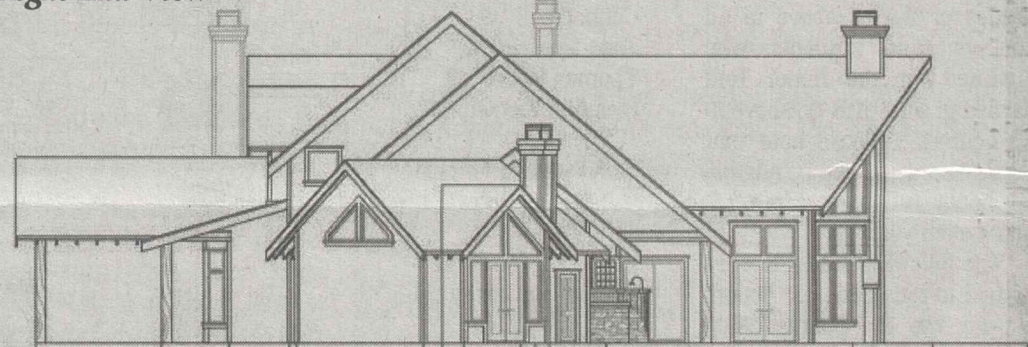

THE EXTERIOR OF THIS EXCEPTIONALLY LARGE, RICHLY WINDOWED chalet home plan is a delight to behold. Its expansive interior offers a multitude of gathering spaces, including a library, dining room, and vaulted living room. Two work islands add to the abundant counter space in the gourmet kitchen.
